

To: Advocate E.V Chinoda

From: Moses Mutemeri (Projects Coordinator)

REF: Animal law training (Friday)

The topic of the day was intersection with commercial and non-profit animal law. The discussion of this day tried to enlighten the young lawyers on how they could make a change in terms of animal law acceptance in Africa using non-governmental non-profit organisations. Also the facilitators took this chance to finish the discussion on ivory trade by putting a broad picture on how the international community was viewing this topic. This discussion enabled the lawyers to see past the instrumental value which is being attached to the elephants and it made them appreciate elephants for their intrinsic value. The young lawyers gave individual presentations on what they had gathered during the work. The presentations stretched from animal rights to wildlife law and the content of their presentations showed that they had learnt during the week but there is still more to learn if we are to really appreciate the value of animals.

Friday in pictures

Listening to the final presentation of the week

Advocate E.V Chinoda explains the current conservation status of Zimbabwe

Advocate hands over a certificate of attendance to a smiling candidate